Textual Representation

Textual Representation

The correct way to write the brand name is as follows:

LDA Audio Tech

(Sentence case)

LDA AUDIO TECH

(All caps)

The following abbreviated name may also be used in informal contexts and in long texts where it is repeated several times:

LDA

Other forms of writing, such as the following and other derived variants, will not be correct:

~~LDA Audiotech~~

~~LDA audio tech~~

~~LDA Audio-tech~~

~~Lda Audiotech~~

The company legal name is “LDA Audiotech S.L.”, although for commercial and communication purposes the brand name LDA Audio Tech will always be used.

03.

Graphic Identity

Combination Mark (Logo)

The graphic representation of LDA Audio Tech is a combination mark consisting of a symbol (brandmark or isotype) and text (wordmark).

05. Typeface

Corporate Typeface

The corporate typeface is the Roboto family in different weights: Thin, Light, Regular, Medium, Bold and Black.

It is an open source font that allows unrestricted use in both online and printed formats, has a large character map and has a high compatibility between operating systems and devices.

It combines a clean, clear and modern design typical of a technological brand with rounded features that make it warm and welcoming.

Corporate Typeface

For digital displays and other applications that require the use of a monospaced font, the Roboto Mono variant, also open source, will be used.

The following weights are available: Thin, Light, Regular, Medium and Bold.

Secondary Typeface

For applications where, for technical reasons, the corporate typeface cannot be used, or when compatibility problems are expected, the Calibri typeface will be used.

Examples of use:

- Email in Microsoft 365 suite.
- Documents shared online in Microsoft 365 with partners and other agents.
- Other apps and online services where Roboto is not available.

When Calibri is also unavailable, the most neutral typeface available (Arial or equivalent) should be used.
